The German Last Offensive

"OPERATION NORTHWIND"

31 December 1944 / 25 Janurary 1945

The objective was simple, the offensive was to break trough the lines of the U.S. 7th Army and the French 1st Army in the upper Vosges mountains and Alsatian Plain, and destroy them. The German offensive finally drew to a close on 25 January, the same day that the reinforcements began to arrive from the Ardennes. Strasbourg was saved but the Colmar Pocket which had to be eliminated. In the bitter desperate fighting of Operation Northwind the VI U.S. Corps suffered a total of 14 716 casualties.
